

Citizens of Danvers Nov: 30 1836

Gentlemen

With sensible emotions I received the little card which, is very affectionately presented to me by the citizens of Danvers.

The present is in itself valuable, but as it is an expression of the friendship & respect of the citizens towards me, it is regarded doubly valuable: especially at a time when a small but restless party, have, like the fabled Bohemian Rapee, been spreading a detestable effluvia throughout the neighbourhood.

This token of your affection will be a solace to my heart as I ride from place to place to preach the gospel of the ever blessed God, & will keep in my remembrance the value of unfeigned friendship in the hour of trial.

With sentiments of high respect & affection yours affectionally.
