

Dear Child

Mohegan April 14. 1775

I have obligations to inform you, that the sickness of my father, all in your state of health at present, and your family is well, and all the business are in your hands and I hope your business are going up to success. I am going I have them with some coming up here and more. Let me know by an early opportunity how the business appears now. I have some business, and if any thing is in agitation, being of nature let us know it. What can you do here. Peace among your people and kin to one another, for your mutual good. Take care you in all your concerns, let me know by your letters both your religious and temporal concerns, which you may send or get in some fair way, it is not right to let them down then are almost all is gone your affectionate father
